The Methodist Episcopalian - This is the title of a religious paper now published in this city by H Barry & Co., and edited by the Rev Samuel Patton. The first number made its appearance on Tuesday last. It is very handsomely printed with new type. Mr Barry is so well and favorably known throughout this section of the State as to render it wholly unnecessary to speak of him as a publisher. The editor will no doubt make the paper highly interesting, and we sincerely hope that it will be very extensively circulated.

The Old Hickory - The publication of the Jonesboro' Sentinel ceased a few days since and the proprietors, Messrs Gifford, have turned over their subscription list to Wm Smith & Co., who will commence the publication of "the Old Hickory" early in June. The publishers of the Old Hickory have been fortunate in securing the services of Col Landon C Haynes as editor.

The Knoxville Tribune. This new Whig paper made its first appearance on Wednesday last. . .

Knoxville Dragoons !! You will see by the subjoined letter to the Adjutant General of the State, that I have tendered to the country the services of our company. Therefore, those who will re-enlist, and all others who wish to join in the full re-organization of the company, will forthwith report themselves to Lieutenant Samuel W Bell, at Knoxville and hold themselves in readiness to march, when called upon without delay. . . Wm R Caswell, Captain.

-Married, on Thursday the 21st instant, by the Rev F A Ross, Mr Joseph B Heiskell, of Madisonville, Tennessee, to Miss Sarah McKinney, of Rogersville, daughter of the late John A McKinney. Notwithstanding the distance from this place, 66 miles, an abundant supply of the beautiful wedding cake was laid on our table. Such proof of non-forgetfulness is a sure guaranty that they will recollect the duty they owe the country. HAWKINS

Died, in this county, on Wednesday last, Mrs Barringer, wife of the Rev John Barringer of the Methodist Church. . .
